Every effort is being made to make every voter understands that no more than two candidates for selectmen can be voted for by any voter at the annual town meeting Monday. This is a new limitation for this town and the danger of having ballots discarded is being guarded against.

Big Vote Expected Monday.

Cows May Come and Cows May Go but the Bull Goes On Forever, is a song that might appropriately be sung this week in some quarters where politics is the exclusive subject of conversation, but on the whole this year's campaign in Killington is freer from abuse and recrimination than for a number of years past. The supply of venom and poison gases seems to have petered out. While a strong drive for various offices by the different parties for town offices is at its height, the campaign is being cleanly conducted and there is the best feeling between the opposing workers.

A big vote is predicted at Monday's election. The town has been thorough-

MOTION FOR NON-SUIT

Denied by Judge Webb in Case Against Albert S. Main.

In the superior court before Judge Webb Thursday the case, to court, of George L. Padgett and Harry L. McIntire vs. Albert S. Main, formerly resident near Attawapung, was heard. The suit was brought over a bill for setting type. The order was placed through the defendant, D. Wood of Danielson, it is claimed by the plaintiffs. Questions arising in the case included whether or not the agent authorized by Albert S. Main to execute a motion for non-suit in the case of the defendant, was denied by the court. Judge Wood reserved his decision.

Interest in Deer Case.

The outcome of the Torrey-Crampton deer case, tried in the superior court, continued to be a matter of lively interest and much discussion Thursday. Those who followed the case closely are convinced that it would not be a very profitable plan for the average layman to refuse to give up the carcass of a deer would a game official demand it unless the circumstances were exactly the same as they were in this case. That he was correct in his position Mr. Torrey was certain from the start of the whole affair, which however, hinged on legal technicalities that it would not be at all wise for one not versed in the law to trifle with. Having a knowledge of the law, Mr. Torrey merely insisted on his constitutional rights in resisting arrest under the particular circumstances in this special case, which circumstances need vary only slightly to alter the whole proposition in some other specific case.

Game with South Manchester Saturday.

Fans in this city will get a change of diamond diet, as it were, Saturday afternoon, when South Manchester comes to Putnam for a game with Manager Cassen's Teddies Bears. The word has been passed around South Manchester that the team is the fastest semi-pro team in Hartford county. Pete Wilson, the stellar boxer who has often raised Hartford fans to the very heights of enthusiasm, is to do the twirling for the visitors and Smith will catch for him. Van Dyke and Lewis will be the battery for Putnam. South Manchester is rated as an even faster organization than the American Optical company team of Southbridge. If this is true, the game will be a real game on Morse field Saturday afternoon, for the locals will have a strong lineup.

GROUND WHERE FIGHT

AUSTRIANS AND ITALIANS

Cherished Playground of the World Changed Into Savage War Theatre.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—"The ghostly Dolomites, the wildly splintered ruins of a once mighty Alps, where all the forms the architect ever designed, and many more, cut in chaotic profusion into the skies, were, a year ago, a cherished playground of the world, while, today, among their crags, peaks and rock splinters, their weather-torn crests and weather-fretted precipices, an inferno of mountain cannons, machine guns and rifles have transformed the playground into the most savage war theatre to be found in all war-ridden Europe."

Thus begins the bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society today, which deals with the terrifying battle-ground where Austrians and Italians are contesting mountain pinacles, sheer walls of barren rock, glaciers, crags and narrow, twisting valleys. The nucleus of the Dolomite is the southeastern part of Tyrol, a region quite as untamed now as when Roman legionaries threaded its craggy passes with their heels in testudo to guard against rock masses from the heights above.

The Dolomites are in their nature sinister, cruel and uncanny. Their desolation is weird. The paths among their crags are treacherous. Wind, rain and frost have scarred them with a multitude of shapes, with teeth and claws and ugly wrinkles. Yet, despite the fierce aspect of these mountains, they have fascinated all who have visited them, and brought many tourists back summer after summer for tramps in the bracing air that blows there and for feasts upon the richly varied scenery which they offer.

The Dolomites are not the same today as they were. The rock of which they are composed is not for dramatic as that which enters into the composition of our Rocky Mountains and the Alps. Each year its thousands of fantastic, modellings are carved new. The strange Dolomite needles become more pointed and longer, while its "towers," "obelisks," "pyramids" and "theatrical spires," its serrate "teeth" and etched walls disintegrate noticeably from year to year. Scattered throughout their area are great fields of broken stones, and deep streams of eroded matter slope against their higher walls. "Titian, the great master of colors, his birthplace was Campo di Sotto, or Pieve di Cadore. At least, he spent his boyhood in the latter village, and the capital of a sturdy Dolomite republic, the Republic of Cadore, which was founded 800 years before America was discovered, and which existed for 800 years, losing its liberty to no lesser conqueror than Napoleon, who, at the peace of Campo Formio, in 1797, re-arranged this part of Europe."

The Latins and Germans have fought from times immemorial on the Dolomite peaks and for seats upon the Alps. Each year its thousands of fantastic, modellings are carved new. The strange Dolomite needles become more pointed and longer, while its "towers," "obelisks," "pyramids" and "theatrical spires," its serrate "teeth" and etched walls disintegrate noticeably from year to year. Tagore as a Schoolmaster.

Sir Rabindranath Tagore has always been much more than a man of letters. His school for boys at Bolpur, in the interior of Bengal, has long been famous, and within the last few weeks he has started in Calcutta a school of arts and crafts. The poet has set aside a part of the Tagore family residence (which was a place of pilgrimage during the lifetime of his father, the Maharajah) for the Art House, which began with a staff of nine teachers and a modest number of Bengali students, including a few girls, married and unmarried. Cottage industries and useful arts of various kinds are being taught; but the curriculum does not exclude modern subjects, for shorthand and typewriting are admitted, though probably not encouraged.

The poet himself has lately, it appears, been taking a rest from original composition. His English rendering of a hundred songs of Kabir, published last year, has been widely read, and selections from two old poems of Bengal—Chandidas and Vidyapati. These men were contemporaries of the great Hindu poet of the fifteenth century, writing just at the age when the language was emerging from the peasant stage into literary form. Both were love poets, and both famous for their vernacular songs, while Vidyapati had a further reputation as the author of highly elaborate Sanskrit verse. They stand at the head of the literary tradition to which Tagore himself belongs, and he is therefore the right interpreter of their work to the modern age. —Manchester Guardian.

RELIEVES THE WORST CASES OF CATARRH

Think "Hymel the Most Wonderful Treatment for Catarrh Ever Discovered."

Do not try to cure catarrh by using sprays or lotions; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this too common disease can be fully relieved is through a direct application to the affected parts that will kill the bacilli of catarrh and prevent their growth.

Breathing the air of Hymel is the only known method of treatment that can really accomplish this. It is the simplest, most pleasant and probably the most reliable treatment for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

Numerous unqualified testimonials have been received from prominent men and women who have been helped by this remarkable remedy. Ministers, bankers, lawyers, even eminent physicians have given strong testimony as to the power of Hymel.

The complete Hymel outfit is inexpensive and consists of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hymel to last several weeks. This will effect instant relief in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use may be necessary, and then an extra bottle of Hymel can be obtained for a trifling sum. It is not alone the best (it might be called the only) method of treating catarrh, but it is also the most economical.

The Lee & Osgood Co. have so much confidence in the power of Hymel to relieve catarrh, that they will for a limited time, sell this medicine under their personal guarantee to refund the money if the purchaser can say that it did not benefit.
